THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN S 1061 NR, S 4095 NR AND S 1095 NR

What's the difference between the filters S 1061 NR, S 4095 NR, S 1095 NR?
They look similar, don't they?

Externally they are similar but differ in terms of filtering element and group sensor.
In particular:

- The filter element of S 4095 NR and S 1095 NR has a higher performance compared to that of S 1061 NR. If you install the wrong p/n, the filter life is not guaranteed.
- The group sensor installed on S 1095 NR differs from that of S 1061 NR and S 4095 NR in the way it communicates with the control unit. If you install the wrong p/n, the control unit will advise the presence of water even if it's not true.

HOW TO KNOW WHICH P/N TO INSTALL?

To know which is the correct PN for your vehicle, follow these steps:

- Check the OE code on Sofima catalogue
- Check which is the correct reference on Sofima catalogue
- Double verify the correct Sofima code searching for the month and year of production of your vehicle in the list of the applications below.
